[Covid-19] When will I get my order?

Our printer's fulfillment times may be longer than usual and may continue to increase until things get back to normal. We're seeing delays in supply chain, including distributors and shipping carriers as the entire industry is grappling with challenges.

Where will my order ship from?

We work with an on-demand order fulfillment company with facilities worldwide! In the case of print to order items, your order will ship from the fulfillment facility closest to you. Other items will ship from our Houston, TX office.

Will I be charged customs for my order?

An additional customs and tax fee can occur on international orders. This fee is not in our control and is assessed by your local customs office. Customs policies vary widely for every country so please check with your local customs office directly to see if they apply duties and taxes to your purchases.

My order should be here by now, but I still don't have it. What should I do?

Before getting in touch with us, please help us out by doing the following:

- Check your shipping confirmation email for any mistakes in the delivery address
- Ask your local post office if they have your package
- Stop by your neighbors in case the courier left the package with them

- If the shipping address was correct, and the package wasn't left at the post office or at your neighbor's, get in touch with us at chris@dilibertophotoanddesign.com with your order number.
- If you did find a mistake in your delivery address, we can send you a replacement order, but shipping will be at your own cost.

ORDERS

How are your products made?

For most of our products, we work with a print-on-demand drop shipper. They have locations worldwide, so depending on where you are, your orders are printed and shipped from the facility that can do it most efficiently! Print-on-demand products are noted in the product descriptions.

Some of our products (stickers and patches) are kept in an in-house inventory. We use a variety of printers for these products.

How do I track my order?

You'll receive a tracking link via email when your order ships out for our print-on-demand products. For our in-house products shipping is handled by USPS. If you have any questions about your tracking or shipment, drop us a line at chris@dilibertophotoanddesign.com.

I received a wrong/damaged product, what should I do?
